

 Welcome to Reusing Dublin,
a space to discover and share information about vacant or underused spaces in Dublin.

Join us in  unlocking the potential of the spaces in our city.

How it works

Using the map  below, discover or add information about any underused sites you have noticed.

How it works

Using the  map below, discover or add information about any underused sites you have noticed.

 Add a space by clicking  the 'add a site' tab and clicking on the location on the map.

Share your information about a site.

Connect with others who might be interested in the site.

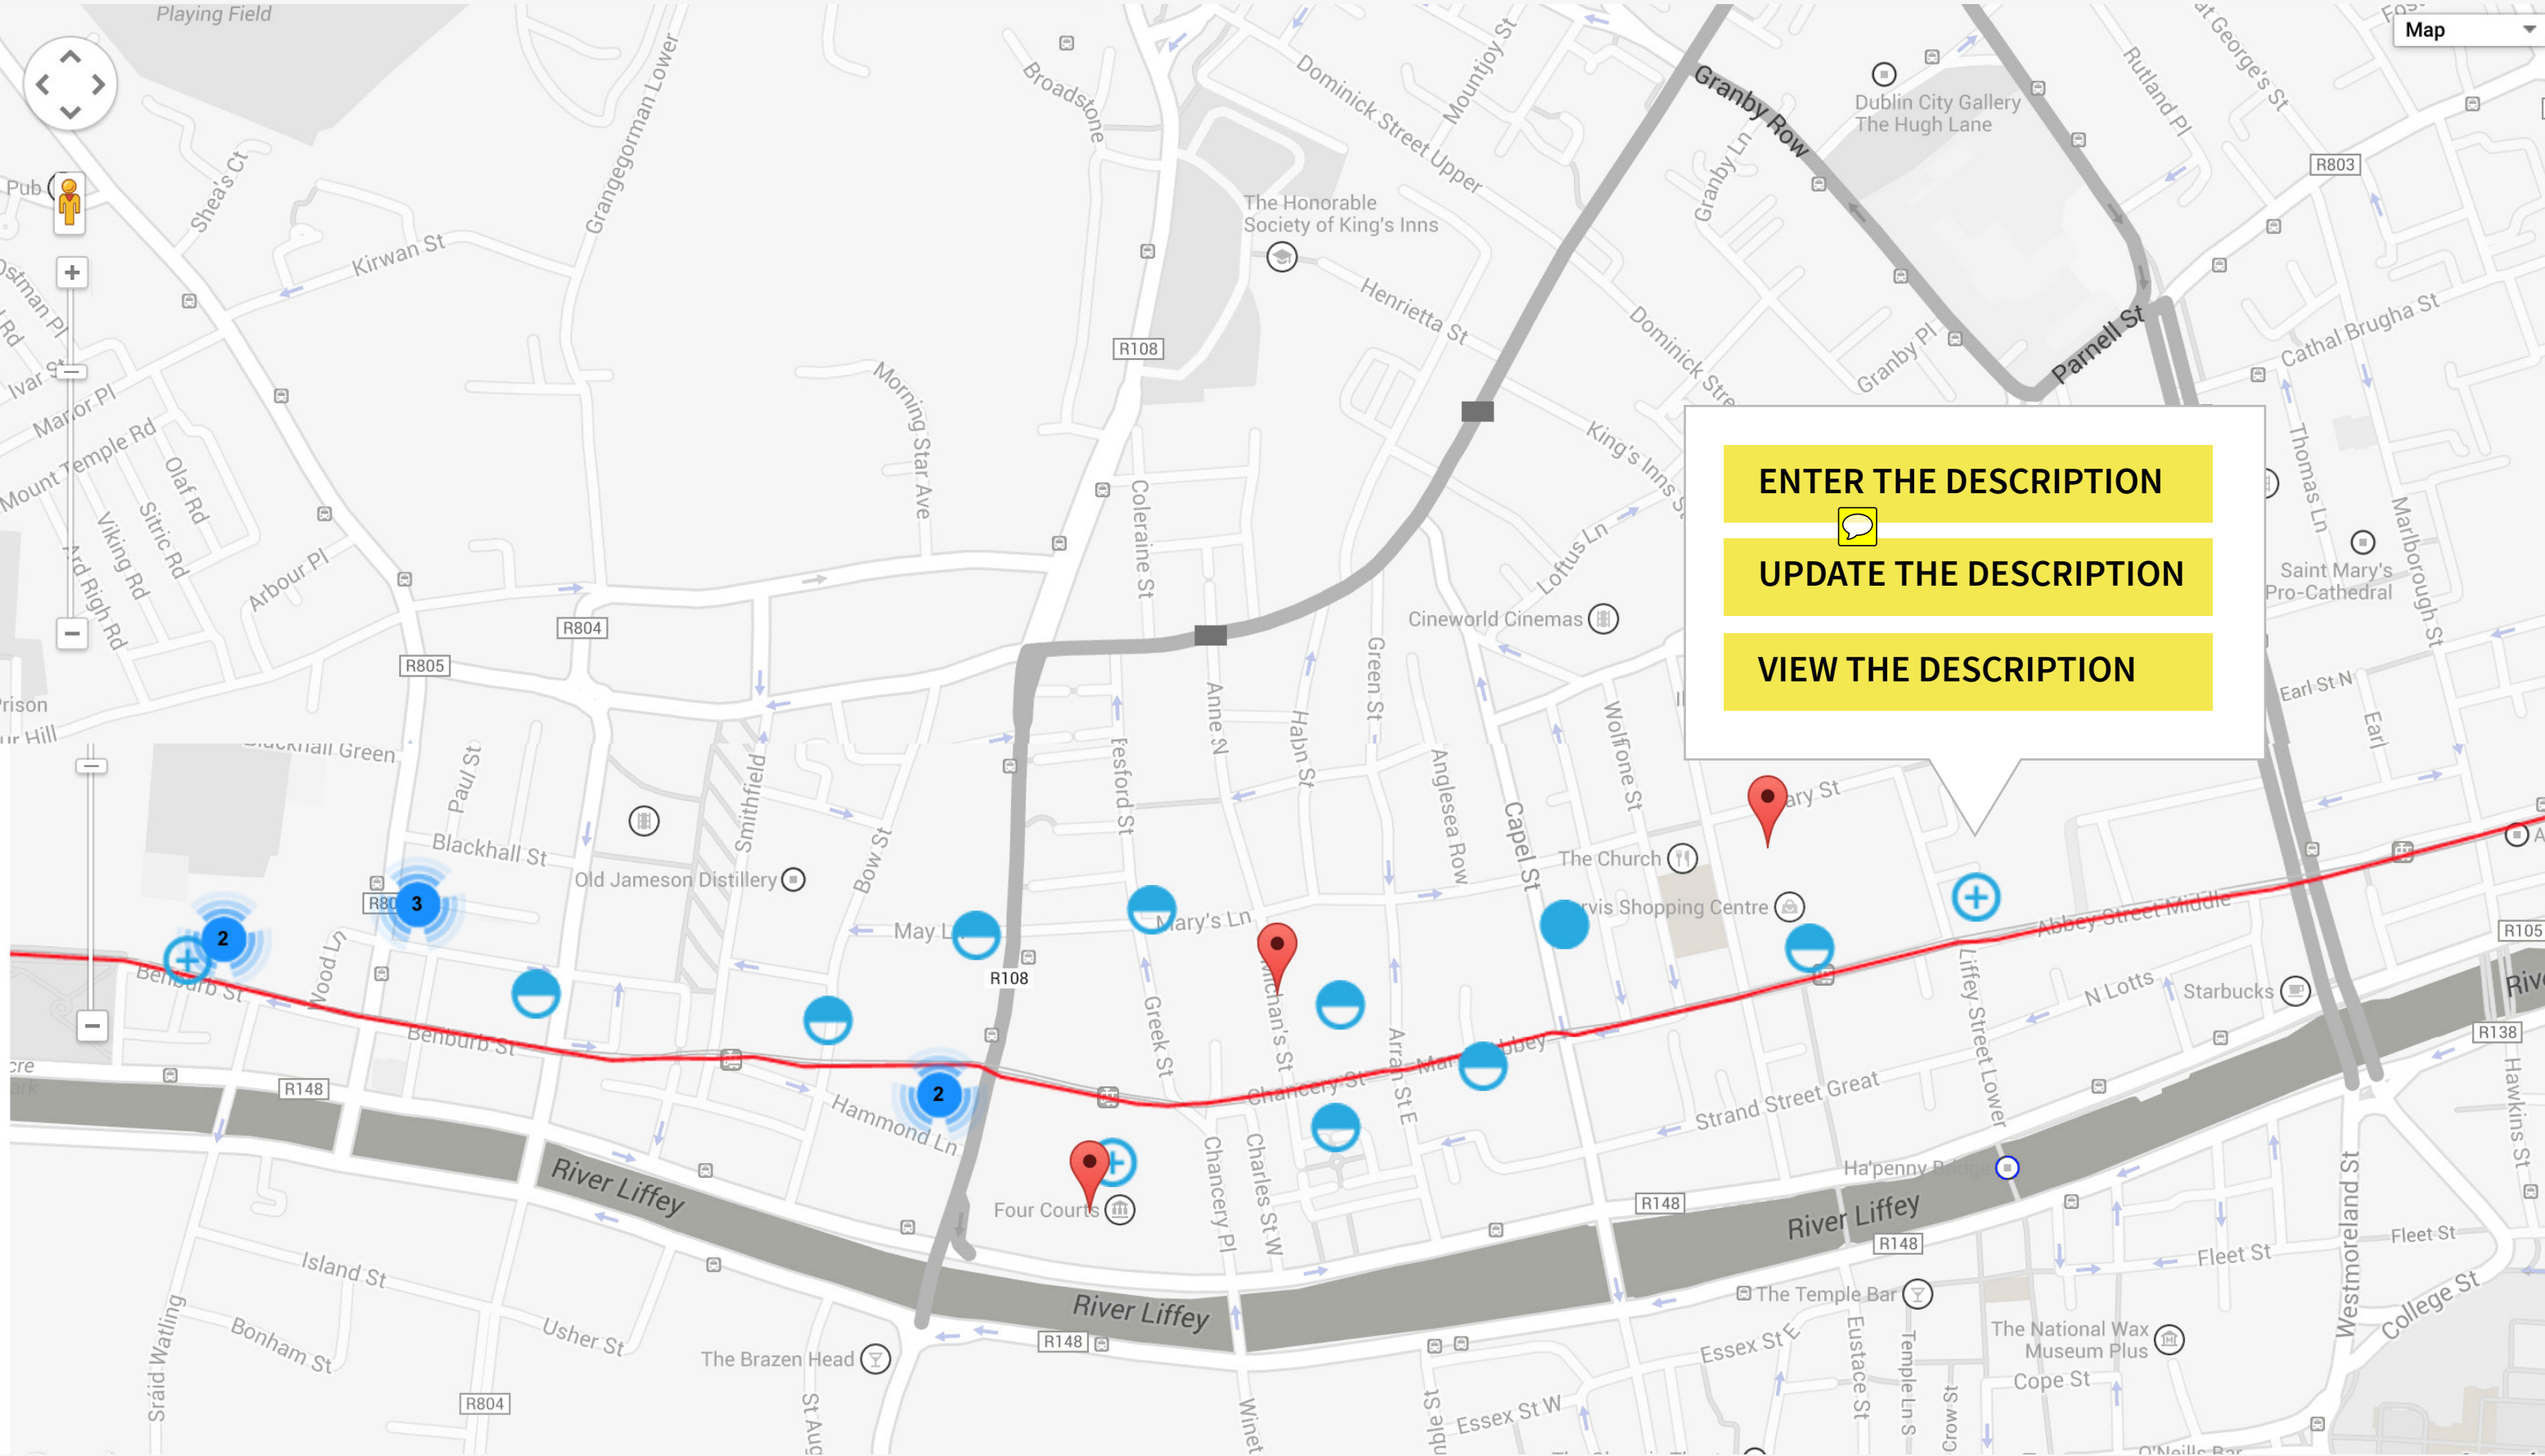

ADD A SITE

MORE INFORMATION

FIND AN AREA

SEARCH BOX

GO

REUSING DUBLIN

ADD A SITE

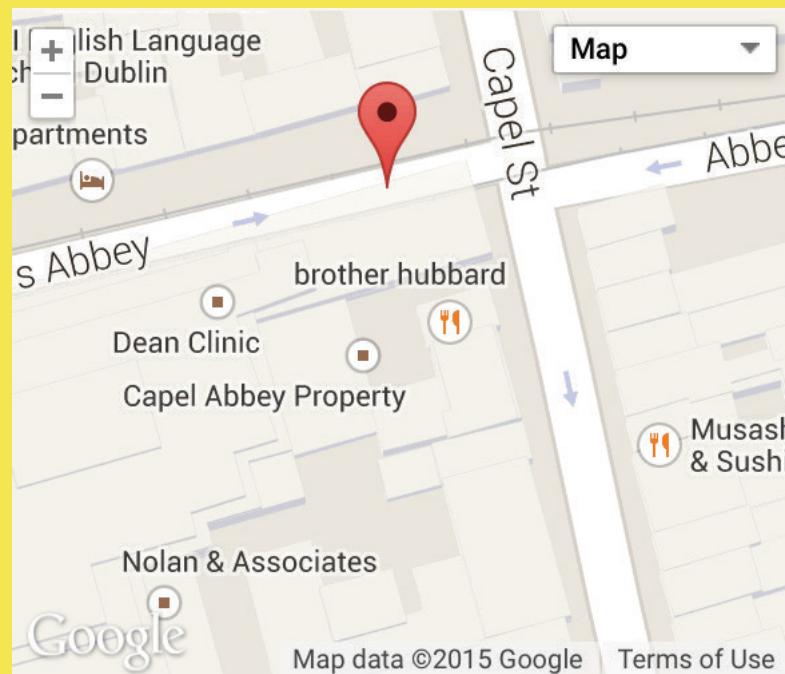

MORE INFORMATION

FIND AN AREA

SEARCH BOX

GO

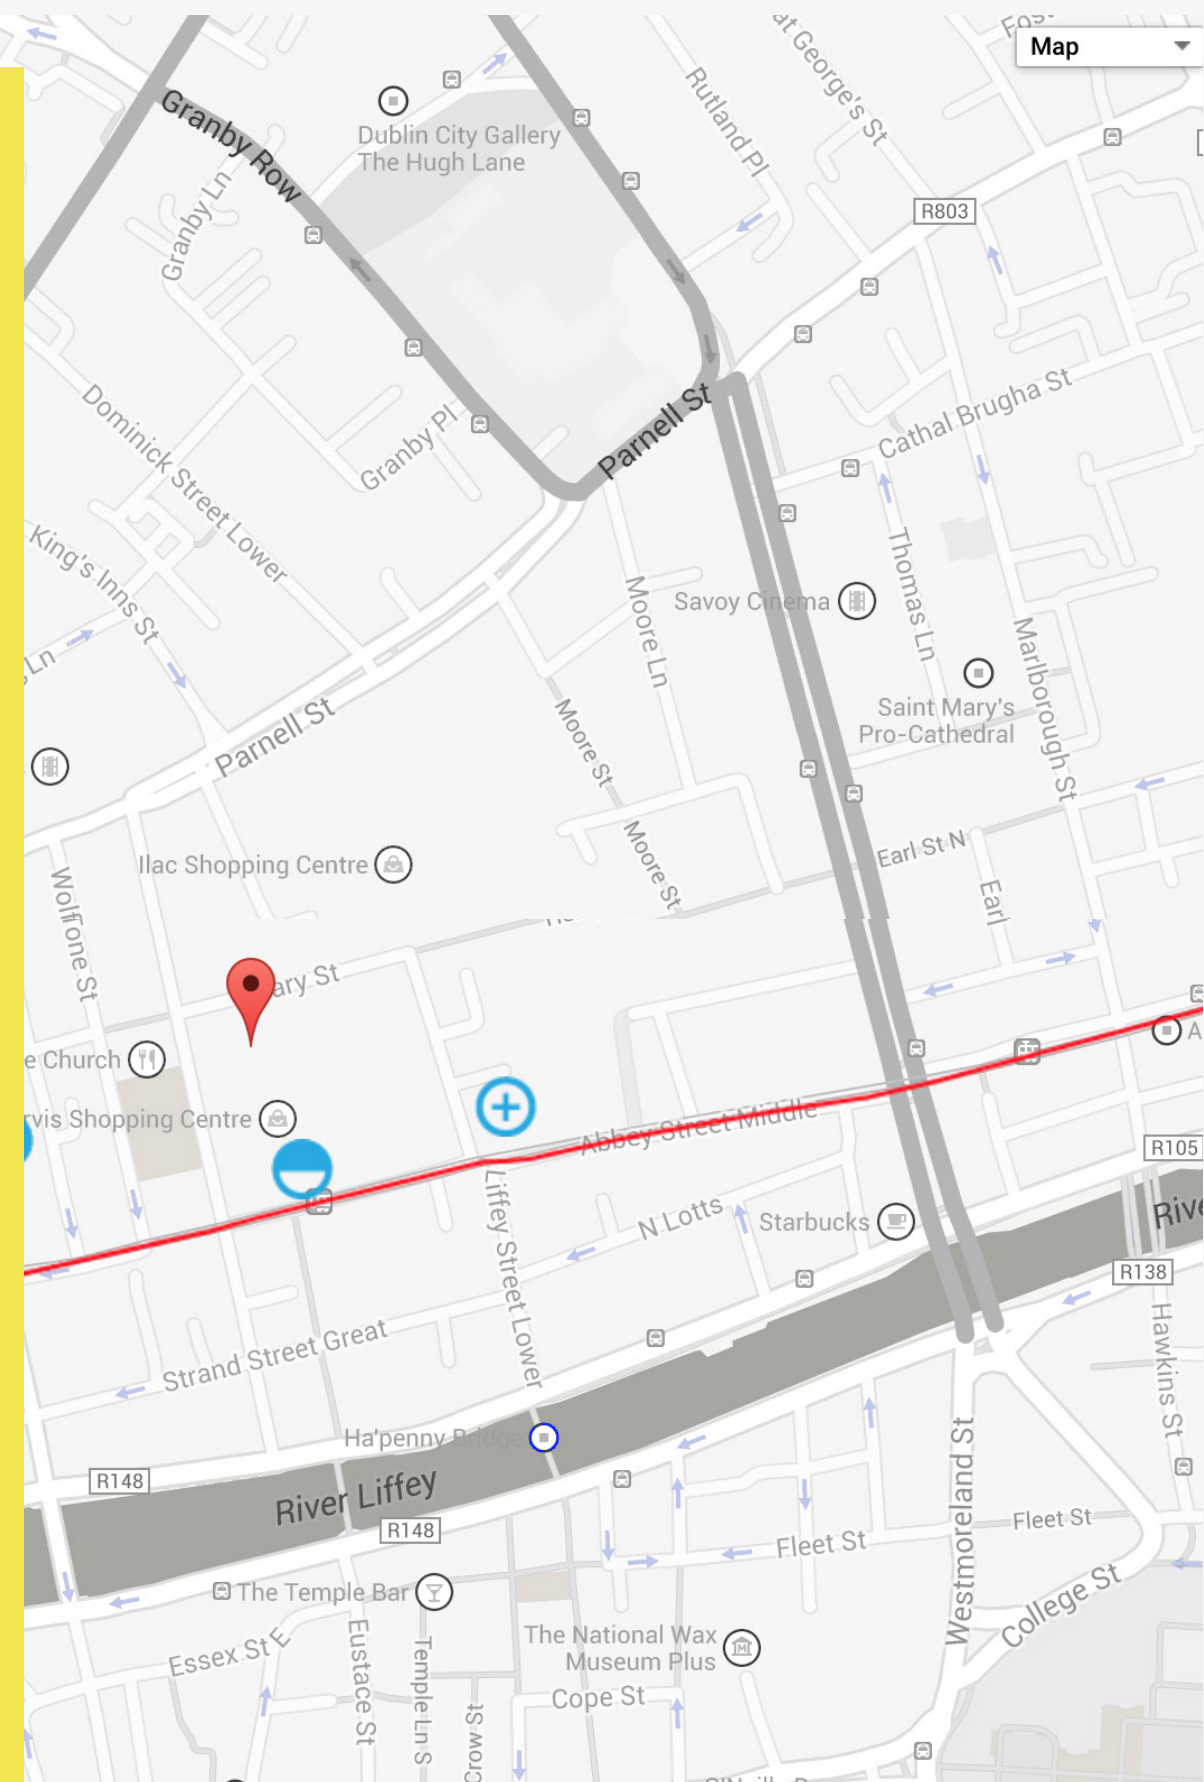

Add a space

Have you an Idea for the Site?

Enter your idea regarding the site/location here

Tell me something about this site/location. For example:
Why do you think this site is in its current condition?
What has the site been previously used for?

About the Project

Reusing Dublin responds to the observation that we don't use space in our city efficiently - and sometimes we don't use it at all.

Reusing Dublin attempts to map underused spaces in order to identify opportunities for using the city more efficiently for the benefit of everyone.

Underused spaces include sites and buildings that are not used at all (vacant) or that are only partly in use. It also includes spaces that may have a use, like a roof or a grassed area, but that could accommodate additional uses.

Re-using Dublin is an experimental research project that is part of a wider EU FP7 project called TURAS (Transitioning towards Urban Resilience and Sustainability).

Subscribe to our newsletter email to get notification about upcoming news, latest project activities and much more!

SUBSCRIBE